

Moldova: Capacity building for the communities of people living with HIV

Objective

To support the community of people living with HIV in consolidating their capacities and networks.

Secretariat of the 'Network of people living with HIV' in a meeting

Partners

- Non-governmental organization of people living with HIV "Credinta"
- Communities of people living with HIV in Balti, Tiraspol and Comrat
- National AIDS Center
- WHO

Overview of the situation

Currently, the community of people living with HIV outside Chisinau, the capital of the Republic of Moldova, is facing significant difficulties in planning and organizing their work, as well as consolidating in strong networks. The United Nations joint programme HIV/AIDS in Moldova has developed a capacity building programme that empowers the participants to create an efficient referral system and increase their advocating power at the country level

Description

UNAIDS in Moldova provides assistance in the organization of capacity building seminars for communities of people living with HIV in various regions. This includes guidance on writing project proposals, strategic planning, monitoring and evaluation and networking. Support will be given to develop terms of references for the network and the design of a web site which would respond to the needs of the community of people living with HIV. The initiative will also assist in organizing a national conference of people living with HIV and will help to carry out a needs assessment for further programming.

Deliverables

- At least four capacity building seminars for people living with HIV in four different regions of the country.
- Terms of reference for the network of people living with HIV.
- An operational website for the network of people living with HIV.
- A national conference of people living with HIV resulting in a strategic document.
- Needs assessment report of people living with HIV.

Next steps

Further collaboration with the network of people living with HIV in delivering the related activities stipulated in the National AIDS Strategy and other national strategic objectives.
